The CHILDREN'S BOOKS HISTORY SOCIETY

The Society was established in November 1969. Its aims: "to promote an appreciation of children's books, and to study their history, bibliography and literary content." There is a Day Seminar in London each year. The Society has helped to organise conferences on the history of children's books.
Three substantial Newsletters are issued per year, and an Occasional Paper from time to time. Every other year the Harvey Darton Award is presented; this is a biennial award given by the Society for the book, published during the previous two years, which contributes fresh and detailed knowledge to the history of British children's books recognising that such material may appear within a broader context than the purely historical, such as bibliographies, biographies, and wider literary and critical works. (Foreign-language books, if available in English, are also eligible.). Our most recent Award, made at the Society's AGM in March was to:-

Mr Lear: A life of Art and Nonsense
